GARZA IS DISCOURAGED

And the Chief and His Band
Will Surrender

TO THE GREAT STATE OF TEXAS.

Alarming Tidings Have Reached Deming, N. M., However—Ex-President Cleveland in the South on a Hunting Expedition—Deed of a Scoundrel.

LAREDO, Tex., Jan. 19.—The Garza revolution is believed to be at an end for the present at least. Armed men reported to be moving through the country are supposed to be Garza's forces going back home. One follower, who lives here, says the first meeting was held in New Orleans and Garza, Randoval, Coupet and a representative of a New Orleans firm were present. It was agreed that if the revolution was inaugurated Randoval would be made leader and he was to receive a hundred thousand dollars. Garza at once took the field, starting with twenty men, which grew to 400. No prominent leader on the other side taking hold he was left to skirmish on this side, and this ended his fiasco. He is thought to be in the vicinity of Laredo and his friends think he may surrender at Corpus Christi, and fight the American law instead of two governments.

Garza's Troops Coming.

DEMING, N. M., Jan. 19.—Alarming tidings from the border reached here Saturday night. Captain James Hyland, United States mounted inspector of customs, has just arrived. He says the discontents are crossing the line in large numbers, and are congregating in the vicinity of Carisillito. All are armed and are evidently flocking to join Sails and his lieutenants, who have taken refuge in the mountains thereabouts. The revolutionists comprise the worst classes, and life and property on the line is regarded as in danger. The troops asked for have not yet arrived. There is but little doubt here that a movement is on foot against the Mexican government. The outbreak may not come for some time, unless those captured in the recent revolt in Ascension are summarily punished. If the government takes harsh measures with the prisoners trouble will undoubtedly be precipitated at once.

The Old Spanish Mine.

OZARK, Ark., Jan. 19.—For several days past there has been a coming and going of men in rough clothes and an air of mystery. Today, however, it was cleared up, and by an examination of the records in the circuit clerk's office here it was discovered that six mineral claims had been filed by persons living in this state and Missouri. These claims all cover what is known as the "Old Spanish Mine," which has been lost for more than seventy-five years. One of the claimants, T. J. Parkinson, says he has followed up the Mexicans who have been working the mine for more than fifteen years, and lost them eleven years ago, since which time he has been hunting for it on his own account, and is perfectly satisfied that he has hit it. Among other evidences that he has struck the right place is a piece of a broken drill which he found in a cave where the mine was said to be located. The mine is located about twenty-eight miles northwest of here.

The Bushnells Located.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 19.—It is learned from a tell tale letter that William M. Bushnell, ex-president of the Minnesota agricultural society, who, with his brother, A. S. Bushnell, is charged with fleecing eastern creditors out of $200,000 in real estate deals, is at Adelaide, New South Wales. Immediately after making an assignment in November the brothers ran away and had not been heard from until today. The grand jury is preparing an indictment against them. It is stated, however, that the extradition treaty between this country and Great Britain will not cover their offense, and their attendance in court cannot be compelled without their consent. Creditors at Rochester, Troy, Providence and Peoria have brought suit for nearly $300,000 against the assignee to compel a settlement of their claims.

Deed of a Scoundrel.

ATLANTA, Jan. 19.—As the Western and Atlantic passenger train passed Austell, Ga., last evening a little daughter of Mr. Dozier had her head out of the car window and some villainous person threw a rock four inches in diameter at her, but missed the child and struck her father on the head, when the missile bounded toward Lawyer Neal and disfigured his face. Blood poured from Mr. Neal's face, while Mr. Dozier fell back on his seat unconscious with a terrible gash in his head. Both men were painfully but not seriously injured. The train was stopped and the angry passengers with threats of lynching made an unsuccessful attempt to catch the miscreant.

Hon. Grover Cleveland.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 19.—Ex-President Grover Cleveland, who passed through Atlanta last night and stated that he and a friend "were stealing" away quietly to New Orleans on a pleasure trip and would go to Joseph Jefferson's plantation in southwest Louisiana for a week's hunting, is expected to reach this city at 2 o'clock this afternoon on a special over the Louisville and Nashville road and will take the train on the Southern Pacific at once for his destination. Mr. Cleveland would not talk at Atlanta.

Wanted to Join His Sweetheart.

ABBOTT, Tex., Jan. 19.—R. L. Martin, who came to this county about two months ago from Arkansas, shot himself with a pistol. The ball entered just above the heart and ranged upward, lodging in the back part of the left shoulder. A doctor was summoned at once. He cut the ball out. Martin said to tell his people he wanted to die, as the woman he loved died about ten days ago. He is resting easy and doing very well at the present.

A SHARP TRICK.

A Confidence Game Successfully Played on an Aged Gentleman.

A very sharp trick was practiced upon an old gentleman, Louis Francis, from Shackelford county, a few days ago by which he was robbed of $25, all the money he had. The victim was 80 years of age and on his way to Dongola, Illinois, his old home.

The robbery was effected by a middle aged man giving his name as Hays, with the help of a confederate whose name was not learned.

The sharper made the acquaintance of the old gentleman at the Cotton Belt depot, and after claiming to be a friend to a number of persons in Illinois named by the old man, the conversation gradually drifted around to the business of each, where they were going, etc. The sharper said he was on his way back to St. Charles, Mo., from which place he had brought a car load of fine cattle, and one of jacks. He said he had sold his cattle, but not being able to dispose of his jacks at satisfactory figures he had concluded to return them to his extensive stock farm in Missouri. He finally invited Francis to go down on the track and look at his fine stock to which consent was given, and they started out. When they walked down several blocks among the cars they were accosted by another rascal claiming to be the agent of the railroad who informed his pal that the freight train was about to start out with his jacks but that he was still due a balance of $5, on them as freight which if not paid at once the car containing his stock would be left behind. He, Hays, asked the supposed agent to go back with him to the depot and he would pay the amount, he having left all his money in the grip he placed in his charge. This the agent refused to do, and said he had left the grip containing 1 is gold behind the door in the ladies sitting room. Hays at once became very much excited and upbraided the agent for being so careless with the grip he had left in his charge with all the wealth he had obtained from the sale of his carload of cattle. The agent refusing to return with him to the depot for the money. Hays turned to the old gentleman and asked him for God's sake to loan him $25, and return to the depot and watch his grip till he settled with the agent and came there himself. The old man handed him over the money and hastily returned to the depot but found no grip, neither has he since seen anything of his $25, nor the sharpers. He told his story to number of kind-hearted gentlemen at the Waverly hotel and a subscription was started by Mr. Wm. D. Syers, a commercial traveller from Stonington, Ill. The sum of $23.20 was raised with which a ticket was bought and the old man went on his way rejoicing. Of the amount raised Mr. Syers gave $8.60, and the Christian church, of which the victim was a member, $5. The church will also pay back $5, of the amount advanced by Mr. Syers. This matter has been kept from the press till now for the reason that the officers thought it might give the thieves notice that they were on their track and avoid arrest. They have however not been arrested up to this time and will not likely be.

The Warde Reception.

Frederick Warde and his excellent company performed his new play "The Lion's Mouth" last night. Mr. Warde was tendered a reception by the Elks after the performance, and the club house was the scene of one of the most delightful entertainments from 11 p. m. until 3 a. m., that Waco has ever known. Mr. Warde presided at the table and his well-known wit, humor and eloquence charmed the seventy-five people who surrounded him. Toasts were proposed by Mr. Warde and responded to by those upon whom he chose to call. Mr. Barton, Mr. Hermann, Mr. Vining, Mr. Leighton and Mr. Arthur Warde were also guests of the club and contributed largely to the entertainment of those present. An extended notice of the reception will appear in the Saturday edition of THE NEWS.
